I have this code: `$('.page').click(function(event){ console.log("ok"); event.stopPropagation(); });` the problem with this code is when I click on one.page element it logs out ok every time and I don't want that to happen. Is there a way to modify this code so I can remove the ok message and only log it if I click outside of the.page element? A: The simplest way would be to add a class to.page element, for example noOp, and in your code, add the following, `$('body').on('click', '.page.noOp', function() { return false; });` Demo The impeachment inquiry is just getting started.
